In late 70s, the Laser 200 was seen at airshows for the first time, and quickly won its place as an airshow champ. With a top speed of over 230mph and withstanding 9Gs of force, it was able to perform sharper, more difficult maneuvers and seemingly endless rolls.

The Carl Goldberg Laser 200 EP ARF is a real aerobatic performer. Featuring aluminum landing gear, painted wheel pants and painted fiberglass cowl. The CGP Laser 200 EP ARF uses independent servos for each aileron, for rock solid handling. You'll see the Goldberg value in its quality craftsmanship and phenomenal aerobatic ability. Plus the CG Laser 200 EP ARF has an all-wood airframe and all-wood wing assembly to ensure accurate and lightweight construction. Top this off with a complete hardware package, and two sharp color schemes to choose from in premium iron on covering.
